

10th Annual Michigan State Undergraduate Linguistics Conference (MSULC)

Friday, April 12, 2019

qUALMS (the q Undergraduate Association for Linguistics at Michigan State) is proud to announce the 10th annual Michigan State Undergraduate Linguistics Conference (MSULC). MSULC is an opportunity to showcase student research currently taking place at Michigan State in linguistics, constructed broadly. Submissions in all language-related research areas are welcome.

Keynote speaker

Adam Liter

Former MSU Linguistics and Philosophy Undergraduate PhD Student at University of Maryland, College Park

If you wish to participate in the conference, please submit a 250-word abstract for either a poster or an oral presentation. Send your abstracts, by email, to msulc2019@gmail.com no later than March 25, 2019. Within the body of the email, please include the author(s), research area, advisor(s), and whether or not you wish to be considered for a poster or an oral presentation (10 minutes). There are a limited number of oral presentation slots. Feel free to visit our web page at sites.google.com/msu.edu/msulc2019. Finally, we invite all students to attend the conference itself and to learn about the linguistics research happening at MSU.

Prizes will be awarded for the best presentations!
